

Ignition Standard Architecture

The standard architecture is best suited for applications that require a scalable, centrally managed SCADA system using only one on-premise Ignition server and select modules. This implementation is most cost-effective setup since you only pay for one license to have unlimited connections, tags, databases, and web-deployable clients.

